Biographical/Historical note

Ruth Steinkraus-Cohen was born and raised in Cleveland, Ohio, and lived most of her life in Westport, Connecticut, and London. She attended The Thomas School, Vassar College, and became a trained pianist at the Julliard School of Music. During her career she was also a singer, editor, radio host, bibliophile, journalist, and activist for world peace.

In 1956, while serving as Eleanor Roosevelt's secretary to the World Federation of the United Nations Association, she became a life-long committed supporter of the United Nations. She received national and international praise for her work on behalf of the UNA, the private, non-profit group that supports the U.N.'s work.

Ruth also organized the UNA-CT and UNA of Southwestern CT and eventually became a national board member of UNA-USA and vice president of UNA-UK, Westminster. During her life, Ruth won numerous awards for her service to music and the United Nations. Ruth Steinkraus-Cohen died on May 26, 2002.
