Women's Rights.

An effort is being made by the "strong minded" women of the State of New York to obtain from the State Legislature the right of suffrage. For this purpose, petitions are circulating throughout the State, and there will be an array of women's names presented to the House that will frighten the bachelors into speedy submission. There are other claims in this petition besides that of the right of suffrage—such as the control of married women over their earnings and the property they brought their husbands. Some of these requisitions are undoubtedly just and proper, but whether women would gain anything worth possessing by the grant of the right of suffrage, is questionable. We should be sorry to see any woman that we respect jostling and hustling the crowd around the ballot box.
