

Issue Theme: History Instructions

· OBJECT TEACHING ·

TEACHER - WHAT CAN WE CONSIDER THE MOST USEFUL ARTICLE IN OUR HOUSEHOLDS?
SINGING LADIES IN CHORUS - MRS. POTT'S COLD HANDLE SAD IRONS.
TEACHER - PERFECTLY CORRECT. ALL GO UP HEAD.

CONTENTS

	Page
The Dynamics of Civilization by William P. Joyce.....	1
Student Teaching by Edward Mulrenan.....	5
How To Prepare For Student Teaching by Mary Ellen Hanford.....	7
Using Classroom Experience As History by Laura Showah.....	9
The State of History in the State of Connecticut by Dr. Herbert Janick.....	11
Basics, Budgets, and the Social Studies by Robert W. Gardner.....	18
History Newsletter.....	21

* * * * *

INFORMATION ON THE AUTHORS

William P. Joyce is an assistant professor of history at Housatonic Community College. He is co-author of A Pilgrim's Journey. He has a masters degree in government from Dartmouth and a masters degree in American History from Georgetown University.

Edward Mulrenan is a co-editor for this issue of Clio. He is a senior at Western Connecticut State College majoring in education with a concentration in history. He participated in student teaching last semester through Western Connecticut State College.

Mary Ellen Hanford is a senior at Western Connecticut State College majoring in education with a concentration in social science. She participated in student teaching last semester through Western Connecticut State College.

Laura Showah is a co-editor for this issue of Clio. She is a senior at Western Connecticut State College majoring in education with a concentration in history. She participated in student teaching last semester through Western Connecticut State College.

Dr. Herbert Janick is chairman of the History Department at Western Connecticut State College. He has contributed articles to The Historian, The Connecticut History Newsletter, and Clio.

Robert W. Gardner is chairman of the Social Studies Department at New Canaan High School. He has a B.A. degree and a M.A. degree from Trinity College, and a M.A. degree from the University of Connecticut.